The ship has anchored in the bay
 Though long her weary wings, and some
 Have sailed the boat, and come away
 But where is he, why don't he come

Among the crowd with busy feet
 His eye seeks one it cannot find
 While others haste there friends to greet
 Why why is he so long behind

Because he bade me dry my cheek
 I dried it when he went from us
 It smelt with lips that could not speak
 And now how can he linger thus

I feel a brother's kiss
 Each moment since he parted from me
 It lingers only in the bliss
 Of missing him when can he be

I've reared the rose he bade me rear
 I've loved the song he bade me love
 I've nursed the bird that he might hear
 The way at last is turned
